8. Rural Development Project (Tripartite Cooperation)

The Rural Development Project was implemented through “Tripartite Cooperation” among Japan, four ASEAN countries (Indonesia, Malaysia, The Philippines, Thailand) and Cambodia. This project started in 1992 by the name of “the Rural Development & Resettlement Project”, and aimed at assisting disadvantaged and vulnerable families including returnees and internally displaced people, demobilized soldiers, as well as the local population, towards the improvement of their present living conditions in the rural areas of Kompong Speu and Takeo Provinces. Basic needs addressed by this project include food production, education, income generation and health care. This project adopted a new method - the Integrated Village Management Approach - which encourages alleviation of poverty through a democratic participation process and human resources development of the population of target areas. Since this project is to be handed over to the Ministry of Rural Development (MRD) on and after March 2004, the ownership of this project has been gradually transferred to the MRD, and the outputs of this project is expected to be maintained and expanded to other areas than two provinces under the strong commitment of the MRD. The project name has changed into “the Rural Development Project” since April 2001.
