

Program Overview (Development Studies Programs Offered by Various Universities)

Name of University	Naruto University of Education
Name of School	Human Education Major, Graduate School of Education
Features of School	http://www.naruto-u.ac.jp/schools/global/
Program Outline	In order to improve the quality of education in developing countries, this program considers educational policies and curriculum, teaching materials, teaching methods, school management, etc. of each country referring to educational experiences and practices in Japan. The goal is to develop human resources who can formulate improvement policies.
Outline of Subjects	(1) "Study in International Educational Cooperation" The theme of this course is to analyze the theory, history, and challenges of international educational cooperation in Japan and worldwide, and to explore the morals and prospects that should be reflected in future educational cooperation policies. The course objective is for students to summarize proposals on international educational cooperation policies through their presentations. (2) "Seminar on International Educational Cooperation" The theme of this course is for the students to learn the process for project planning, execution, monitoring, and evaluation using the Project Cycle Management (PCM) method. This knowledge is a prerequisite for specialists in the field of international educational cooperation, who may work for JICA or other organizations. The course objective is for the student to acquire practical skills in PCM process and the ability to apply them to actual cases. (3) "Characteristics and Development of Japanese School Curriculum" This course addresses the current Japanese school curriculum that is actively being implemented, and aims to clarify (1) what it is, (2) the background of its formation, and (3) how it is employed in real contexts in Asia, Africa, Southern Oceania, and South America.
Related URL
Program's appeal	