Operations Evaluation in JICA

Chapter 1 What is JICA's Operations Evaluation System?

Chapter 2 Efforts to Improve its Evaluation

Chapter 3 Topics (Site Visit of ODA Projects by an Expert and a Celebrity)

A variety of organizations and groups including governments, international organizations, NGOs, and private companies carry out economic cooperation to support socio-economic development in developing countries. Financial and technical cooperation extended by governments for development purposes is called Official Development Assistance (ODA). ODA is classified into two types: bilateral aid and multilateral aid (investment and contributions provided to international organizations).

Among Japan's ODA, JICA provides bilateral aid in the form of Technical Cooperation, ODA Loans, and Grant Aid* in an integrated manner. Part 1 describes the evaluation system for these projects of JICA and efforts to improve the evaluation system.
