JICA and Official Development Assistance (ODA)

■ Technical Cooperation

Technical Cooperation supports the development of human resources that will promote socioeconomic development in developing countries, the improvement of technical standards, and the establishment of administrative systems by utilizing the knowledge, experience, and technologies of Japan.

■ Grant Aid

Grants provide funds to developing countries with low income levels without the obligation of repayment. It is used to finance the development of basic infrastructure, including schools, hospitals, water-supply facilities, and roads, as well as the procurement of equipment and other supplies.

■ Loan Aid

ODA Loans support developing countries above a certain income level by providing low-interest, long-term, and concessional funds to develop chiefly the area of socioeconomic infrastructure.

*Furthermore, JICA supports the resolution of issues in developing countries through a flexible combination of various types of assistances, which include Dispatch of Volunteers, JICA Partnership Program with NGOs and Training Program in Japan.
