Ms. Junko Watanabe, a short-term expert on neonatal care of IINeOC project has been providing technical assistance to the staff at Svay Rieng Provincial Hospital. The hospital has about 4,700 deliveries per year and 560 neonatal ward admissions. The hospital staff is working under the 27 hours work shift and the biggest challenge is the shortage of staff. Ms. Junko Watanabe starts working on the arrangement of the neonatal ward to improve work efficiency which includes cleaning and sterilizing of medical equipment to prevent infections. She is also working on improving hospital staff's careful observation and keeping records of the patients.
