B. Summary of Master Thesis

Field of Study in Japan : Disaster Management
University Name in Japan : Hiroshima University
Title of thesis : shared house as an evacuation destination

Please summarize your Thesis within 20 lines in maximum.

Evacuation destination choice is an important aspect of evacuation management. People are likely to choose among relatives/ friends ‘home, public shelters, hotels/ motels or others (like second homes in safe areas, etc.) as an evacuation destination during emergency. In earlier studies, little attention has been given to change or improve destination choice behavior. One of the approaches to change or improve evacuation behavior is through introduction of new and more feasible evacuation destination options and testing their feasibility. In this context this study has tried to explore the feasibility of shared house as an alternative evacuation destination using Governments’ platform. The findings of the study are useful for the policy makers to decide the introduction of new alternative evacuation destination as a public service.

Moreover, I will try to be a bridge between researchers of Pakistan and Japan and will try to increase role of researchers in policy making process of Pakistan.
