The Study on the Development of Industrial Statistic in Vietnam

Background
In these days, industrial statistics covering industrial production, shipments and inventories in a country provide essential economic data, not only for the government agencies but also for private businesses, investor, and researchers to know the current status of business activities. Reliability and prompt dissemination are absolutely necessary for effective use of industrial statistic. Moreover, international comparativeness of statistic becomes indispensable for their users. To achieve the country’s healthy economic expansion, development of industrial statistics that are based on modern techniques and comply with international standards is one of the national priorities in Vietnam.

Objective
To support the General Statistic Office to develop a current survey of industrial activities and the indices of the industrial production

Major Activities
1. To conduct a basic study on the current conditions of the statistics;
2. To design the basic system of the industrial statistics;
3. To conduct trials surveys and formulate a development plan

Counterpart
Industrial Statistic Department, General Statistic Office

Duration
May 2004 ~ May 2005