LIVING CONDITIONS AND OTHER REMARKS

Bhutan is a lower middle-income country, landlocked between China and India, with an estimated population of 770,000. Its Human Development Index of 0.666 (2021) places it in the medium human development category, ranked 127 out of 189 countries. Rapid economic growth averaging 7.5 per cent per annum was experienced since the 1980s. Between 2010 and 2021, the Gross National Income (GNI) per capita increased by 22.3 per cent to USD 11,300.5. Poverty rates reduced sharply from 23 per cent in 2007 to 8 per cent in 2017, with 12.4 per cent recorded in 2022. Significant gains in human development, poverty reduction and living standards have been guided by Bhutan's gross national happiness philosophy of balancing economic growth with environmental sustainability, inclusive social progress and cultural vibrancy, underpinned by good governance. Despite the positive momentum, socio-economic vulnerability remains, primarily due to difficult geo-graphical conditions, narrow economic base, dependency on limited international market for trade, and increased emigration of productive population in recent years. Bhutan is a relatively stable and peaceful country. The capital, Thimphu, is located at an elevation of 2,334 meters where the summers are warm, and winters are chilly. The Bhutanese currency Ngultrum is pegged with the Indian Rupees and one USD is equivalent to 82 Ngultrums approximately. In the capital, rented flats range from Nu.7000-17,000 (96 to 250 USD) while furnished apartments cost around 300 to 700 USD. Public transportation including taxis are cheap starting from 0.3 USD to 5 USD. Groceries and other food items would amount to around 300 dollars a month.

Bhutan provides free basic health and education and as per Article 9 of the Constitution of Bhutan, access to universal basic health services is free to all individuals living in the country. The country's national language is Dzongkha but the local populace is comfortable using English which makes day to day conversations easy.
